

Here We Go. Again!

Our favorite übereventeur goes on another whirlwind weekend (this one ends with a star-studded Mamma Mia! premiere in little 'ol Southampton) and lets us read the diary. by Peggy Siegal

9:30 P.M. GREEK-THEMED DINNER UNDER THE TENT AT THE PARRISH ART MUSEUM ON JOBS LANE

Everyone is now handed a Mamma Mia! flashlight from lighting designer Ira Levy and a Portfolio umbrella (just in case the water from Aphrodite's fountain of love bursts through a crack on the sidewalk, emulating the film's finale) as they walk down the street to dinner.

The tent on the grounds of the Parrish Art Museum is the setting for the annual Midsummer Gala the museum hosted the night before. Christine Mercer and Classic Party in Water Mill stripped the tent Sunday morning and created a Greek Island of blue and white within hours. Projections of the Mediterranean on the walls, endless ropes of lights, piles of Greek food by John Perry, and disco Abba music mixed with Zorba the Greek greet all.

Moving and mingling on the dance floor are Nanette Lepore, Sara and Charlie Ayres, Katharina Otto-Bernstein and Nathan Bernstein, Bob Balaban, Bob Colacello, Jennifer Creel, Joanne and Roberto de Guardiola, Danielle and David Ganek, Audrey and Martin Gruss, Marjorie Gubelmann, Zani Gugelmann, Jane Rosenthal and Craig Hatkoff, Ros and Fran L'Esperance, Elizabeth Lindemann, Marcia and Richard Mishaan, Heather and Steven Mnuchin, Kathy and Billy Rayner, Antonia Salm, Vanessa von Bismarck, Tom Scott, Sandy Brant and Ingrid Sischy, Kelly and Jay Sugarman, Kimberly Guilfoyle and Eric Villency, Margo and Ashton de Peyster, Beth de Woody and brother Billy Rudin, Laura Landro and Rick Salomon, Pamela Gross and Jimmy Finkelstein, and Judith and Rudy Giuliani (who've brought Judith's daughter Whitney, a recent graduate of Skidmore). My 20-year-old niece Mattie, currently a junior at Skidmore, comes with half her class. Lastly, theatrical producer Eric Falkenstein arrives. He's responsible for bringing Katie Holmes (aka Mrs. Tom Cruise) to Broadway this fall. Two local celebs, Amagansett's NBC star Alec Baldwin and Estée Lauder face Gwyneth Paltrow, decide not to fight Sunday night traffic, and stay in East Hampton to celebrate the 20th anniversary of Nick & Toni's.

HAMPTONS

Elle
MACPHERSON

THE BODY IS BACK
(AND INTO LINGERIE)

SKIN IS IN!
Summer fashions
that flaunt your figure

ONE-ON-ONE WITH:
Designer Allegra Hicks
Intermix's Khajak Keledjian
Swimsuit designer Malia Mills

PLUS:

An RSVP from Debbie Bancroft
Abridged guide to Westhampton
Barry Sonnenfeld on Planned Parenthood
Kathy Freston on eating your way to fitness