

Left: The hosts Diddy, Jessica and OK! founder Richard Desmond. Above, from top: Marvet Britto and Star Jones; the Gastineau Girls.

CELEBRATING OUR SUCCESS

A NIGHT WITH OUR FAMOUS FRIENDS

Sean "Diddy" Combs and Jessica Simpson might be the King and Queen of American pop culture. So it was fitting that they would both host the arrival of the U.S.'s newest celebrity weekly — OK! America, the international answer to pop culture's fascination with celebrity news that's a weekly fix straight from the mouths and hearts of the stars. The festivities took place at the Garden of Ono in NYC, where guests enjoyed sushi, Prada cocktails, Patron Cosmos and wine and champagne from Sofia. OK!

Below, from left: OK!'s editor-in-chief Sarah Ivens with Queer Eye's Carson Kressley; Eric Villency, whose furniture decorates a room of Jessica's home; Diddy makes a speech.

Above, from left: Rocco DiSpirito and Queer Eye's Jai Rodriguez, who has said of Rocco, "He's my straight boyfriend because we spend so much time together." Jessica's hairdresser Ken Paves with OK! society editor Jennifer Binn; Baby Phat's James Campbell and OK!'s publisher Melanie Danks.